Notes for HON. RUSSELL SAGE: Sage, Russell, 1815-1906, American financier, b. Oneida Co., N.Y. He was successful in the grocery business in Troy, N.Y. Active in public affairs, he became (1845) alderman of Troy and served (1853-56) as a Whig member of Congress. He continued to amass great wealth by banking, and after moving (1863) to New York City he engaged in stock speculation. In association with Jay Gould, he gained extensive financial control in several Western railroads, in the elevated railway system in New York City, and in the Western Union Telegraph Company. An attempt to assassinate him in 1891 failed, resulting in the death of the would-be assassin, Henry Norcross. Upon Sage's death, the distribution of his fortune was left in the hands of his widow, Margaret Olivia Slocum Sage,. 1828-1918. She made large gifts to the Emma Willard School and to the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy; established Russell Sage College; and donated money to other educational organizations and to benevolent societies. Marsh Island in the Gulf of Mexico was bought by her in 1912 and given to Louisiana as a bird sanctuary. The great single benefaction was the establishment (1907) of the Russell Sage Foundation in New York City. This institution, endowed with a total of $15 million for "the improvement of social and living conditions" in the United States, did pioneer work in cooperating with various social agencies. In addition to conducting research activities in social welfare, public health, education, government, and law, the foundation has also been concerned with the possibilities of increased use of social-science techniques in the practicing professions.

More About HON. RUSSELL SAGE: Burial: Oakwood Cemetery Troy, Rensselaer Co., NY

Notes for MARGARET SLOCUM: Margaret Slocum was born in Syracuse, New York, on September 8, 1828. She graduated from the Troy Female Seminary (now the Emma Willard School) in Troy, New York, in 1847, and over the next 22 years she taught school occasionally as her health permitted. In 1869 she married the widower Russell B. Sage, a businessman who had built a fortune from wholesale groceries, banking, and railroad finance. Russell Sage's underwriting the education of 40 Native American children, his gift of a dormitory to the Troy Female Seminary, and his gift of $50,000 to the Woman's Hospital of New York were generally attributed to her influence, as he was not otherwise known for philanthropy. At his death in 1906 his wife was left with an estate valued in excess of $63,000,000.20 She quickly set about becoming one of the foremost philanthropists of the day, demonstrating her long-held belief that women were the moral superiors of men and were primarily responsible for the moral progress of civilization. In 1907 she established the Russell Sage Foundation with an endowment of $10,000,000. The foundation's broadly stated purpose was to foster improved social and living conditions in the United States, and the trustees were given virtually unrestricted authority in the use of its money. At the time her gift was the largest single act of philanthropy in history. In 1910 she built a new campus for the Emma Willard School, and in 1916, acting with the help of Eliza Kellas, she converted the old campus into Russell Sage College, devoted to the vocational education of women; the college was eventually the recipient of $1,000,000 in gifts from her. She gave other gifts to Harvard and Yale universities, the Young Men's Christian Association and the Young Women's Christian Association, the American Seaman's Friend Society, various museums, and the Russell Sage Institute of Pathology of the New York City Hospital. She died in New York City on November 4, 1918, and in her will she made many major bequests. Her total philanthropy in life and death was estimated at $75,000,000 to $80,000,000.
